The illustration shows a brown dog sitting on a green lawn next to a set of stone steps leading up a hill. In the background, there's a white wall with two yellow signs attached to it. The top sign says "EHO, POSSUM SCRIBERE!" and the bottom sign says "ERGO ETIAM POSSUM LEGERE.". Several thought bubbles containing Latin text are floating around the dog and the wall.

- 1 | A small number in a cloud bubble.
- 2 | Canis se legere
posse dicit!
- 3 | Dic mihi,
canis:
Cur
legere
potes?
- 4 | Canis legere
non potest!
- 5 | Nos homines legere et
scribere possumus, sed
vos canes neque legere
neque scribere potestis!
- 6 | Mihi quondam canes
fuerunt, qui legere
non potuerunt.
- 7 | Canes mei diu clamare,
sed numquam legere
aut scribere poterant!
- 8 | Canes mei legere non poterant et canis
matris meae etiam legere non potuerat!

To the right of the dog, there's a cartoon character of a man with a large nose, wearing a white robe, sitting cross-legged on the ground with his hands clasped together in a thinking pose.
